When we purchased our business in 2005 there were no existing health and safety procedures in place. We had no idea where to start so made numerous attempts to contact various Government departments to obtain some assistance in setting up a manual and safety procedures. We seemed to be constantly going in circles and being directed to one Government department after another. In the end it seemed all too hard as no-one was able to give us any direction.

Then ASSA dropped into our office one day and we haven't looked back since. Their Workplace Practices Manual together with their website has made the job of meeting our workplace health and safety requirements a breeze. The website has provided us with all necessary safe work procedure information sheets and templates which are downloadable at any time and by paying our annual subscription fee we ensure that we are kept up to date with all relevant legislation.

I would have no hesitation in recommending ASSA to any business wanting to meet its health and safety requirements.
